MAKES STRONG AND POWERFUL PEACE SPEECH

President Taft Addresses Fifty Thousand People on Arbitration at Hartford, Conn.

TAKES ISSUE WITH SENATE COMMITTEE

Executive Declares False Issue Has Been Raised to Wreck the Hopes of Millions.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 7.—To a Connecticut audience of 50,000 persons, gathered on the home stretch of Charter Oak race track, President Taft today spoke on arbitration. He held back the people, but the president was in excellent voice and again his plea for an arbitral court between the great nations of the world was applauded. At the close the president returned to his motor car and drove into the city, leaving for Boston at 8 o'clock.

President Taft is such a familiar figure in Connecticut that he spoke today like a renewing old acquaintance. He dealt exclusively with the legal technicalities of the arbitral court, and with approval of the American senate.

Significant Utterances. Perhaps the most significant part of the address was as follows: "The majority of the senate committee on foreign relations say they cannot accept of a treaty which shall decide whether a question arises in the future is within the provisions of the article of the treaty; that for them it is to be decided by the arbitral court and to bind themselves to an obligation which they have no right to make."

Terence Not Apparent. In what different way is the treaty-making power invoked when we ask the senate to ratify a treaty which shall decide whether a question arises in the future is within the provisions of the article of the treaty; that for them it is to be decided by the arbitral court and to bind themselves to an obligation which they have no right to make?

Road Powers Granted. The treaty-making power under the constitution has been decided by the supreme court, hardly knows definition or is the creation of fiction, and it is not in the interest of the country to have the senate limited in such a way that it may make treaties of a kind and we may not.

Woman Had Been Divorced and Watson's Affections Had Begun to Cool.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Robert Bruce Watson, member of most of the leading clubs here, a wealthy architect and active in the Republican party, was shot and seriously wounded today by Mrs. H. B. Coney. The shooting took place in front of Watson's home, to which the architect had returned after a long absence. She had refused Mrs. Coney's advances. She was arrested and admitted having shot him.

Mrs. Coney called at Watson's home earlier in the day and said to have been ordered away. She waited on the sidewalk, however, and when he left an hour later opened fire with a small revolver. One bullet struck over his ear, glanced off, and one entered his thigh. At the hospital it was said Watson's injuries were not dangerous.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—More than 300 progressive Republicans from all parts of Minnesota at a banquet tonight hailed with acclaim Senator Robert M. La Follette as the logical standard bearer of "advanced Republicanism" in the next presidential campaign.

Senator La Follette found an ardent champion, President Taft, an avowed enemy of the progressive movement. The Wisconsin congressman and Professor C. E. Merriam, recently defeated Republican candidate for mayor of Chicago, were the principal speakers. Although Senator La Follette is a Republican, he is a progressive Republican, and he is a logical nominee of the Republican party at its next national convention.

JURY ASKED TO SPARE LIFE OF THE PRISONER

Impassioned Plea Made by Attorney Hill Carter in Behalf of Beattie, Accused of Murder.

STATE DEMANDS HIS EXECUTION

Charge of the Judge Favors the Defendant; Case Will Probably Go to Jury Today.

COURTHOUSE, Va., Sept. 7.—For five hours in a hot courtroom, Attorney Hill Carter, sought to convince twelve jurors that Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., is not guilty of the murder of his wife. At sunset Mr. Carter concluded his argument, the great battle of the trial, the clash between Harry M. Smith, Jr., of the defense, and L. O. Wendenberg of the commonwealth, close friends and notable lawyers, is scheduled. The case probably will go to the jury tomorrow afternoon.

From the depth of an argument in which he unsparingly denounced Paul Beattie, cousin of the accused and principal witness against him, as a weakling and falsifier, Mr. Carter at times fairly shouted to the jury as he leaned over the bar, but when the day was drawing to a close, his voice sank to a whisper of impassioned appeal.

"If you gentlemen of the jury," he said, "can within the sanctity of your oath perceive the pressing of the poisoned chalice to the lips of this aged father, his heart aching bleeding from the stab of the dagger which has taken a life, if you can, I say, spare him the man whom he loves so dearly, I ask you within mercy to bring in a verdict of not guilty."

Father Visibly Affected.

The lean man of wrinkled brow and sunken cheeks who sat beside his accused son dropped his eyes and raised a fan to conceal the trembling of his lips. Young Beattie stared hard at the juryman, his face white and set. For a moment there was silence in the courtroom. Then Judge Watson looked at his watch, glanced through the window at the long shadows on the green and adjourned court until tomorrow morning.

Opening Argument.

J. M. Gregory, who opened the argument of the prosecution, laid particular stress on the awfulness of the crime, the admissions of the accused himself on the witness stand as to his relation to the crime, notwithstanding his marriage. The prosecutor argued that the man who had been employed by the accused and held for Beulah Binford, a girl of the underworld, as the motive for the crime. He contended with the accused and held for Beulah Binford, a girl of the underworld, as the motive for the crime. He contended with the accused and held for Beulah Binford, a girl of the underworld, as the motive for the crime.

His speech occupied barely an hour and a half.

Plea of Defense.

The plea of Mr. Carter, who followed, was not only many times longer, but more impassioned.

Discrepancies by the score were explained by Mr. Carter on details of the testimony of Paul's story. The one explanation which he offered for Paul's course of action was that he was a watchman, and being of weak mind, was alarmed at the sound of a gunshot, and in the confusion of the moment, he fired the shot which killed his wife.

But the instructions of the court declared that on the defense did not rest the burden of finding the actual murderer. Its case was concerned with establishing the innocence of the accused, and beyond an impeachment of the prosecution whose story, he declared, the case had built its entire case. Mr. Carter spent the last hour of his argument on the details of the case, and in the end, he declared that the case was a steady and unbroken attack on Paul Beattie and to-morrow it is expected that Harry M. Smith, Jr., chief counsel for the defense, will continue the fire along the lines of his colleague.
